No Time Like the Present

Aunty Joyce Summers

The outer feature of the painting is the Tweed River and the marine life therein. The half green circles represent the mangrove roots of the Tweed River.

The concentric circles represent the services that can be accessed by people, friends and families who are affected by Alzheimer's. The waving lines between the circles show how services link to each other.

The centre of the painting shows a brain that is affected by Alzheimer's Disease. Words around the centre of the image are some feelings that a person with Alzheimer's may experience.

Aunty Joyce is a highly respected Aboriginal Elder who has worked tirelessly to educate the Tweed Community about her culture. She was born on Eukrebah Island in the Tweed River and from an early age her relationship with the river has been one of admiration of its beauty and colours.

We acknowledge the traditional custodians of Australia and their continuing connection to land, sea and community. We respect the Elders past and present and express our heartfelt apology for the injustices endured by Aboriginal people of our nation. We will continue to strive, day by day, for our thoughts and actions to reflect these truths and sentiments.

Introduction

This Dementia Support Kit has been developed for:

- People with dementia
- People with changes in brain function or memory
- Family members
- Carers
- The community

The Kit includes:

- This book
- An Important Health Contacts fridge magnet
- Delirium Action Plan
- Printable resources for doctors
- A website where you can download a copy of the Kit:
www.ncphn.org.au/dementia

This is not a complete list of resources or information. We hope it will help you start thinking about the support you may need now or in the future.

Everyone is unique, and support networks or living situations will be different for everybody. Don't hesitate to call the numbers listed to find answers to your questions. You can also look up more information online.

Remember that you are not alone. There are people you can talk to and different ways to get the support you need.

When mum was diagnosed I received lots of information regarding dementia as an illness, but nothing about support services. This Kit would have been so helpful for us.

Judy, cares for her mum with dementia

We gratefully acknowledge the people with dementia, their partners, family and carers who helped us to design this Dementia Support Kit. Their valuable contributions shaped this book into a truly local community resource.

For more information or to access an online version of the book, visit the North Coast Primary Health Network website: www.ncphn.org.au

This Kit was published in December 2017.

Information, services and support were correct at the time of publishing. This information does not replace advice from your doctor or medical professional.

My Aged Care

My Aged Care has been set up by the Australian Government to help find information about:

- Types of aged care services
- Eligibility for services
- Service providers
- The costs of services
- How to access services

Many Hastings Macleay aged care services need a referral from My Aged Care before you can use the service. Get a referral by visiting the My Aged Care website or calling them.

Aged care services include:

- Personal care like showering and dressing
- Transport
- Modifications to your home like hand rails or ramps
- Nursing, physiotherapy and other care
- Meals
- Household jobs like shopping, cleaning or gardening
- Social activities
- Respite services
- Permanent residential care

Finding a service on the My Aged Care website

1. Go to www.myagedcare.gov.au

The screenshot shows the My Aged Care website interface. At the top, there is a navigation bar with the Australian Government logo, the myagedcare logo, a search bar, and a phone number (1800 200 422). Below the navigation bar, there are several menu items: Getting started, Help at home, Aged care homes, Costs, Find a service, Quality and complaints, and Login. The 'Find a service' menu item is highlighted with a yellow arrow pointing to it. Below the navigation bar, there is a breadcrumb trail: Home > Find a service. The main content area is titled 'Find a service' and has several tabs: Help at home, Home Care Packages, Aged care homes, and ACAT. Below the tabs, there is a text box explaining the search process. Underneath, there is a 'Step 1 Search by:' section with two radio buttons: 'Location' (selected) and 'Name'. Below these is a search input field with the placeholder text 'enter postcode or suburb'. To the right of the input field is a yellow arrow pointing to it. Below the input field, there is a 'Step 2 Select service type:' section with two columns of radio buttons. The first column includes: Allied Health and Therapy Services, Assessment, Assistance with Care and Housing, Case Management, Centre-based Respite, Client Care Coordination, Cottage Respite, Domestic Assistance, Flexible Respite, Goods, equipment and assistive technology, and Home maintenance. The second column includes: Home modifications, Meals, National ATSI Aged Care Program, Nursing, Other Food Services, Personal Care, Social Support Group, Social Support Individual, Specialised Support Services, Transition Care, and Transport. To the right of the second column is a vertical yellow arrow pointing downwards. At the bottom of the page, there is a purple 'Search' button with a yellow arrow pointing to it.

2. Find a service

3. Start to type your town and select it from the drop-down menu

4. Select the service that best meets your needs

5. Search

National Health Services Directory

The National Health Services Directory lists local health services around Australia.

To find services for people with dementia in Hastings Macleay:

1 Visit www.nhsd.com.au

2 Click on Advanced Search at the bottom of the page:

The screenshot shows the website www.nhsd.com.au in a browser. A yellow box with the number '1' is positioned over the address bar. The website header includes the 'healthdirect Australia' logo and navigation links: Home, Who we are, What we do, Collaborate, Careers, and News. The main content area features a 'Collaborate' section with links for National Health Services Directory, Information partnership, Promotional materials, Embeddable widgets, Australian Health Thesaurus, and Research and evaluation. Below these are accessibility options (A, A+, A++) and PRINT and SHARE buttons. A search section is visible, containing a list of service types: General Practice, Pharmacy, Emergency Department, Hospital Services, and More Services. Below the list is a search input field labeled 'Enter Suburb or Town' with a 'Search' button and a link for 'Advanced Search'. A yellow box with the number '2' is positioned over the 'Advanced Search' link.

3 Type 'dementia' in the 'Can't find what you're looking for?' box.

4 Type your suburb or postcode and choose your location from the drop-down menu that appears.

The screenshot displays the National Health Services Directory interface. At the top right, the logo for National Health Services Directory is visible. On the left, a dark blue sidebar contains three sections: 'Find...', 'Filter', and 'Location'. The 'Find...' section includes a '+ More Services' button and a list of service categories with checkboxes, such as 'Aboriginal Health Clinic', 'Chiropractic', 'Dietetics', 'Exercise Physiology', 'General Practice', 'Hospital Services', 'Occupational Therapy', 'Pharmacy', 'Psychology', 'Audiology', 'Diabetes Educator', 'Emergency Department', 'General Dental', 'Generalist Counselling', 'Maternal, Child and Family Health', 'Optometry', and 'Physiotherapy'. Below this list is a search box titled 'Can't find what you're looking for?' with the placeholder text 'Search eg diabetes, surgery, carer or Westmead Hospital'. A yellow box with the number '3' highlights the search box. The 'Filter' section is titled 'Service Options' and is divided into 'Preferences' and 'Facilities'. 'Preferences' includes 'My Health Record Ready', 'No Appointment Required', and 'Telehealth Capable'. 'Facilities' includes 'Accessible Parking', 'Free Parking', 'Accessible Toilet', and 'Wheelchair Access'. The 'Location' section at the bottom features a 'Suburb or postcode' input field with a yellow box and the number '4' highlighting it, and a 'Search' button to its right.

Mind

Dementia is the name given to a set of medical signs and symptoms caused by diseases that affect how the brain works. Dementia is more than just memory loss. It can also affect thinking, behaviour, communication and the ability to carry out daily tasks.

If you are experiencing changes with any of these abilities, it is good to see your GP early. Diagnosing dementia will require further investigations and may take some time. Referral to a medical specialist such as a geriatrician may also be required.

There are four main types of dementia:

- Alzheimer's disease
- Lewy body disease
- Vascular dementia
- Frontotemporal dementia

All types of dementia are progressive. This means the symptoms become worse over time. It is different for everyone and changes may happen over a few months or many years.

Dementia usually progresses through three stages:

■ Early dementia

A person may start to notice problems with memory or concentration. Friends, family or others may also notice these problems.

■ Moderate dementia

At this stage, the problems are more apparent and will interfere with everyday life. A person in this stage may act in unexpected ways, confuse their words, or be unable to recall personal details.

■ Advanced dementia

At this stage, a person is severely impaired and may need total care.

Dementia Australia has help sheets on the types and progression of dementia. You can access these help sheets at goo.gl/6PJCeQ. You can also search 'dementia, Australia, help sheets' in Google.

Port Macquarie 'Dementia Friendly Community'

Port Macquarie and the surrounding regions are aiming to be dementia-friendly communities. A dementia-friendly community is a place where people living with dementia are supported to live a high quality of life with meaning, purpose and value.

Dementia Australia has developed a number of resources to assist all Australians to get a better understanding of what they can do to contribute to a dementia-friendly nation.

Diagnosis, Treatment And Care For People With Dementia PDF guide: www.tinyurl.com/y9nusv3j

This is a guide to the standard of care that should be available to all Australians with dementia. It lets you know what kind of care and treatment to expect and some questions to ask along the way.

You can find it by searching for the title in Google.

My mum's always been a knitter, but she can't follow a pattern any more because she just gets lost, so she makes up her own patterns now. She makes scarves and donates them to the local aged care services. It keeps her mind stimulated. It's just trying to find something that works for you.

Judy, cares for her mum

Behaviour changes

Changes in the behaviour of a person with dementia are very common. It may also be harder for people with dementia to tell others how they are feeling.

Common behaviour changes may include repetition, wandering or agitation. Behaviours may change for different reasons so always discuss these with your doctor to check for any medical causes.

If behaviours are worrying or causing problems, there is help available.

Physical Activity

Physical activity is any body movement that works the muscles and uses energy. It can include things like household chores and gardening as well as planned exercise. Physical activity and gentle exercise are beneficial for people with dementia. They can help:

- Keep the brain active
- Prevent muscle weakness and mobility problems
- Prevent health problems from inactivity
- Reduce anxiety and depression
- Increase social inclusion

Playing golf was so good for us – socially and to get some exercise as well. So when that had to stop 12 months ago, it was very hard for us, because then you're doing nothing. We now do lawn bowls and get all the trophies!

Going to hospital

Hospitals can be a foreign place, and sometimes hospital visits are unplanned. There are some simple ways you can ensure you are prepared for a hospital visit:

- Carry a list of your current medications on you at all times.
- Have the name of your doctor and their contact number written down.
- Have an emergency family contact number on you at all times.
- Keep a copy of your latest medical history, or ask your doctor to save it on your online My Health Record.
- Know who will feed your pets if you are ever away from home for a few days. Discuss this with them in advance and keep their name and phone number with you.
- If you have a home alarm, make sure a friend or family member knows the alarm code and number of the security company.
- Keep reading glasses or hearing aids in one place so you can pick them up quickly.

Living

There are lots of services that can help people to stay independent as long as possible while living with dementia.

Safety

It is important for everyone to feel safe and secure in their home and community. Dementia symptoms such as confusion, memory loss, disorientation and problems with mobility may affect personal safety.

An occupational therapist can provide an assessment of the home environment and offer suggestions on modifications and/or aids and equipment to keep people safe and prevent falls.

Personal alarms can help bring peace of mind but still allow someone to live independently. Personal emergency response services are available. Companies providing these services can be found in your phone book or online.

Wellbeing

Living with dementia may bring different feelings and emotions. It is important that you, and your family or friends, can talk about what is happening and how you are feeling.

“ My mum has dementia. Every time she goes on an outing, I can see the difference in her straight away and for the next few days. She is much more alert and happier. When we don't get out, I find she doesn't want to go out as much. So social support is very important for us. It's so good for mum to do regular social activities to keep her mind active.

Judy, cares for her mum ”

Social Life

One of the best ways to exercise the brain is to talk to different people or try different activities. Everyone will have different interests. See below for some ideas of social groups or activities to try.

Respite and taking a break

Respite care provides a break for a person with dementia and their carer. It enables families and carers to have a rest, go out, attend to business or go on a holiday.

Many people find that a regular break means that they can recharge and avoid burn out. It also gives a person with dementia an opportunity to socialise and meet other people.

Respite care can happen at home or an overnight respite cottage, a day centre or residential care facility. Respite care may be for a few hours or longer, depending on need.

Permanent residential care

Deciding to find an alternative to caring for a person with dementia at home can be one of the most difficult decisions people with dementia, their families and carers will make.

Being prepared can help make this decision less stressful. Knowing about the services, government policies and costs of residential care beforehand can help you make the best decision.

Local services

There are a number of residential care providers in the Northern Rivers region.

My Aged Care can help you find local residential care providers.

An Aged Care Assessment Team (ACAT) assessment is required prior to any approval for permanent residential care.

My Aged Care will assist you to organise this assessment and help to look for government-funded aged care homes that meet your needs.

Call 1800 200 422 or visit www.myagedcare.gov.au

If you know what service you want, ask for this service by name when you contact My Aged Care.

Palliative care

Palliative care aims to maintain the comfort, choices and quality of life of a person at the end of their life. Care should provide emotional and practical support for people with a terminal illness and their families.

Local services

- Palliative inpatient care is available at Kempsey, Port Macquarie and Wauchope Hospitals.
- To access palliative assistance at home, see your GP for referral. Support at home includes symptom and pain management, social and bereavement support.

Carers

Many people living with dementia in the community rely on a carer to support and help them. Family, friends and other support people may feel joy, stress and loss as they assist in managing changes, making decisions and coping with a caring role.

I'm a carer for my mum who has dementia. She likes the mental stimulation from doing puzzles and puzzle books. The puzzle books with the big writing are really helpful.

Judy, cares for her mum

Planning for the future

Planning ahead can help ensure that personal decisions are clear and controlled in the future. Talking with family and carers will also help them to know your wishes. There are people and organisations who can help with money, legal and medical arrangements.

Legal matters

Planning ahead can make it easier for families and carers to manage the affairs of a person with dementia. It may also mean that the person with dementia can participate in the planning and make sure that their wishes are carried out in the way that they would like.

Wherever possible, get advice while the person with dementia can still participate in the discussion and is legally competent to sign any documents.

Some things to think about:

- Enduring Power of Attorney

An enduring power of attorney is a legal arrangement that enables a nominated person to look after the financial affairs of another person should they become unable to do so.

- Enduring Guardianship and Administration

An Enduring Guardian is someone appointed to make lifestyle, health and medical decisions for a person if they are not capable of doing so. An Enduring Guardian may make decisions about living, support at home and medical treatment.

- Advance Care Directive

This is a written document expressing the wishes of the person with dementia about medical treatment.

- Finances

You may need to plan ahead to protect your money and set up your finances so they can continue to be managed responsibly if you can no longer do this yourself.
