Understanding My Health Record and Mental Health

CLARENCE VALLEY EVENT

Grafton
Quality Inn, 51 Fitzroy Street

North Coast Primary Health Network (NCPHN) invites you to a dinner event for all health professionals who wish to understand how the My Health Record system is used in the sensitive area of mental health.

Learn how you can save time and streamline business processes while improving continuous care for clients. The session will explain what it means for mental health care providers to access patient information and maintain and protect patient privacy.

Tuesday 12th March 2019
5:30pm to 8:30pm

Presenter
Mr Jamie Marshall, Clinical Psychologist

Jamie Marshall is a Clinical Psychologist in private practice in North West NSW. He has experience working with people across the lifespan, from adults to teens, and children.

He has an interest in autism, depression, anxiety, bipolar disorder, Workcover-related psychological injuries, and working with those who have a disability under the National Disability Insurance Scheme (NDIS). He also has extensive experience working with Aboriginal people.

Jamie is currently completing a PhD in the area of digital mental health where he is specifically looking at the effectiveness of mental health apps for smartphones and tablet devices. As a Clinical Reference Lead for the Australian Digital Health Agency,

Jamie would like to utilise his areas of expertise, including knowledge of digital mental health, living and working in a rural area, working with Aboriginal people, and advancing the cause of people suffering with a mental illness.
